Letter Available to Help with Late Fees from Mail Delays

The head of the military's mail system has distributed a letter asking creditors to exempt overseas soldiers and civilians from late fees on payments delayed by the reduced flow of military mail to and from Europe. Mail services to Europe were sharply curtailed following the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks in the United States. The letter can be included with correspondence or payments to their creditors.

Officials caution that the letter itself does not automatically exempt personnel from the late fees. Rather, the letter explains the late payment is the result of delays in military mail and asks the creditor to exempt soldiers and civilian employees from the fees. The letter is signed by Maj. General Kathryn G. Frost, executive director of the Military Postal Service Agency. Soldiers and civilians employed by the military can obtain a copy of the letter at Army post offices, consolidated mailrooms and battalion S-1 sections.
